The Missing Key in Retirement Planning

At Open Arms, we put planning first. Most families overlook care until a crisis, causing stress and costly mistakes. We help you prepare early, build clear roadmaps, and connect to the support that makes your plan work.

Financial Healthcare Planning

Most families are shocked at how quickly savings can disappear. Our experts show you what insurance will not cover, uncover resources you may already qualify for, and create strategies to keep senior care affordable without draining your retirement. You can begin planning as early as age 45 to protect yourself and your family from financial strain.

Senior Care Guidance

Whether it's a fall, a new diagnosis, or a sudden hospital discharge, we help families match care options to real health, mobility, and social needs. From home care to senior communities, we ensure safety, comfort, and peace of mind without unnecessary stress.

Family & Patient Support

Hard conversations, made easier. We coach families through difficult decisions, prepare questions for doctors, explain medical recommendations, and make sure nothing important is overlooked during hospital stays or follow-up visits. Our support gives families clarity and confidence to take the right next step.

Your Biggest Questions, Answered

Does Medicare cover long-term care?

No. Medicare doesn't pay for most long-term care, leaving many families unprepared. We help you understand what's covered and find reliable resources for today and the future.

How do we afford senior care?

Care costs add up fast. We help you compare options, explore benefits you may qualify for, and build strategies that make care possible without draining your budget.

How do I know what care my loved one really needs?

From mobility changes to memory concerns, care needs can shift quickly. We help you understand the level of care required and connect you with the right support at the right time.

Where do we even begin?

Finding the right care can feel impossible. We assess your loved one's needs, match you with trusted resources, and guide every step of the journey.
